

~HOOVES TO SHOES~

genre: fantasy, queer

Most creatures cross the bridge to the afterlife quietly. But sometimes, very rarely, at the moment of death the soul leaves with a wish so loud that it echoes back into the living world. And when that happens... Even the universe pauses to listen.

Logline: Four dead horses come back reincarnated as humans to do the things they thought about at the last moment before death.

Ýildyz (steel gold Akhal-teke) - sassy style, wild attitude, yet kind deep inside

Yadigar (bay Andalusian) - sympathetic and likes to dance

Daniyar (black Jabe) - playful, high-spirited and the strongest

Bozer (gray Altai) - might appear daring but is calm. Is the shortest.

When the horses asked the spirit guide why they were able to come back, the spirit guide said it's usually applied for asexual creatures. You get a second chance before going to the soul land.

Fun Facts: They sleep on their feet for a while but give up as it's a human body. The beautiful Akhal-teke's face gets funny-ugly while sleeping.

Ýildyz was a victim of the poaching. He was killed during transportation as he managed to break locks getting wounded. He came back to unveil the bad guys so they would not hurt the other horses. He approached an inspector whom he remembers from the past visits. The ex-horse guy cannot sit for a long time and asks if he can just stand up. Then the man said he's lucky to be a tourist so he can wear catchy clothes but it's better to be modest. Ýildyz said that all animals walk around naked and kind of got uncomfortable saying how the humans look at the animals then?

Yet, he accepts to wear only the outfit that was looking like his horse fur which was a tight but stylish overall.

"For someone who once raced the wind, Yildyz struggled terribly with chairs."

Ýildyz had a rival horse Copper (he recognized human Ýildyz immediately) with whom he would fight but at the end horse helped them to catch the bad guys as well. Ýildyz and Copper bid farewell peacefully.

Yadigar was a muse of a female artist after her depression treatment. He died in an international festival because of a dangerous situation caused by security negligence. He came back to help her find a new muse. "He was such a sunshine," said the artist.

"You flatter me. I mean... He would say something like that".

Through communication with Yadigar and exploring new places together, the artist discovered new inspirations and began to create again.

Daniyar was a farmer's grandson's pet. During fire in the neighborhood stable barn, he rushed in to save a foal to not let his human friend get in there. A piece of roof fell on him and he died. He came back to comfort his friend and help his crush to open up to his friend. As a horse, the friend's crush opened up to Daniyar that he is in love with his friend, so the horse tried to push him to the other to let open up. But the crush miserably failed. The crush then was jealous of human Daniyar seeing him being close with his friend. Turned back in human form, Daniyar confidently used techniques from human BL romance dramas.

He had, of course, misunderstood most of them.

Daniyar was a weak foal and his mom died too soon, so the teen who stayed with granddad, took him from the neighbor and looked after him. As a horse he would lie down beside his friend putting his chin on the guy's leg to pat his head.

The crush confessed his feelings to his friend. Then to his cytologist parents that he likes cats. The parents said it's okay, you said it as you are gay, and he confirmed it. The parents accepted him after thinking about it.

Bozer was saved by a little girl before his owners put him to sleep because of being traumatized and old. Once some bad kids called him a donkey, and his girl said you thought that was an insult? Donkeys might be small but they are hardworking and smart and cute. Bozer wouldn't take it as an insult. Bozer horse thought that she read her thoughts. Several years later he died because of old age. But came back to comfort the girl during her illness treatment before dangerous surgery. Bozer is afraid she was scared which would affect the surgery and if she dies they'll never meet again so it's their last chance to say farewell.